Items at random

New York, November 22.—A new refugee problem may be developing. An elevator man in one of the university buildings at Columbia who is a veteran of the last war said he'd like to get into the war "just so I can get away from the wife". . . . On the home front there is fear of another split in the labor ranks for the A. F. of L. can't make up its mind whether the Siamese twins should pay one or two membership dues. . . . A friend, while holding two umbrellas for some people, remarked "Gee, I feel like a couple of Chamberlains". . . .

Still Items

A trend of the times. The title of a Lowell Thomas newscast was "News of the Nation" instead of the customary "News of the World". . . . The latest national pastime here is a great guessing game entitled "Will the President Run for a Third Term?" Everybody is guessing, from the shoe shine boy to the astrologist to the President. Nobody knows. The President himself has been taking time off to send the newspapermen on false starts. Playful people the Americans—from President down. . . . Letters to The Editor of The New York Times average 400 daily, but when there is some important issue there are thousands. . . .

Still at random

Justice is tempered with mercy in New York courts. A Magistrate, in imposing fines on owners of dogs found without leashes, charges must only half the amount of thoroughbreds. The funny thing is that of six cases the other day all the owners claimed their dogs were thoroughbreds despite the difference in price. . . . A little volume called "Broadway Portraits" in a pen picture of Sylvia Sydney, states that Sylvia "wears pajamas or nightgowns according to her mood." Whatta woman. . . . Columbia coeds, the girls of Barnard, don't get student coupons for football games, nor do students of any of the graduate schools or faculties. Coed cheer-leading is unheard of in the Eastern States. . . .

Yes, still

Swimmers at the Park Central Hotel have quite a time of it. The pool authorities insist that you use their bathing suit and towel, then they throw in a gym with all kinds of equipment and offer a free sun tan service. Besides, it is a coed affair which makes it all the more pleasant. . . . A Dartmouth grad, subsequent to Dartmouth's loss in football last week-end, was asked whom the team had played. He haughtily replied, "I don't recall." This only the championships we ever remember. . . . "The Eighteenth Century Drawing Room" is a magnificent melody but when you see it played by Raymond Scott, who adapted it from a Mozart theme, and his band, you have the exquisite in tuneful music. . . .

Thanksgiving

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving in New York state as well as in most of the others in the Union. President Roosevelt set the date a week earlier than usual because businessmen had been complaining that in the past Thanksgiving had come too close to Christmas. Now that the date has been changed, the Republican states have decided to celebrate the holiday on the last Thursday. (Continued on Page Four)

Parliament to Debate Suffrage for Women

A Mock Parliament, sponsored by the McGill Debating Society, will deal with the subject of woman suffrage in Quebec, in the Union Ballroom this evening.

The Prime Minister will be Leonard Percussion, and S. Hutchinson will be the leader of the Opposition. Judith Jaffe will uphold the government's side while that of the Opposition will be taken by George Thompson.

Monday, a McGill debating team will begin a tour to challenge teams from the Universities of Queen's, Toronto and McMaster. Alex Stalker and Lloyd Henderson make up the McGill team and will take the negative side of the resolution "Resolved that the interests of democracy can best be served by United States' neutrality rather than by active participation."

They will later uphold the affirmative of this against McMaster.

Professor Bonn Presents Lecture in Moyse Hall

Will Speak on Nazi Economics in Modern Germany Next Wednesday

"Economy of Nazism" will be the subject of a special lecture to be held in Moyse Hall by Professor Moritz J. Bonn, the Registrar announced today. Professor Bonn, who is an authority on the subject of economics, was formerly rector of the Handels Hochschule in Berlin, and has been lecturing for several years at the London School of Economics. The lecture to which not only students, but also the general public are invited, will take place in Moyse Hall on next Wednesday, November 29 at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are not required.

Professor Bonn is an authority on European economics, especially those of Germany before, as well as after the introduction of Nazism, with the accompanying emphasis on nationalism. His lecture on Wednesday will contrast the old and new trends in German economics, the tendency to isolate the currency inside the country from the rate of exchange employed in deals abroad.

Speaking on this subject, the lecturer will draw from a long experience as an advisor on reparations to the German Government after the war and during his time as Rector at the Handels Hochschule in Berlin. Professor Bonn has been also on the faculty of the Geneva school of International studies, where he did some research work in his special field. During the war the Professor, who is a naturalized British subject, spent some time as visiting professor at the Universities of Wisconsin, California, and Cornell. At all these colleges he achieved success.

The London School of Economics saw him also for several years, which he spent as lecturer there. Professor Bonn's work includes many treatises on economics and political science, and studies of special conditions and problems in all parts of the world. A few of his publications are: The Stabilization of the Mark, The Crisis of European Democracy, Myth and Reality in American Economic Life, The American Experiment and The Crumbling of Empire. ## EDITOR ANNOUNCES ANNUAL DEADLINE

Graduates' Pictures, Biographies Must Be Ready by December 1

Friday, December 1, is the deadline for pictures and biographies of graduating students, Walt Conrad, editor-in-chief of the annual this year, announced last night.

"All pictures must be taken at Rice Studio before December 1, if they are to appear in Old McGill," Conrad said. "If biographies forms are not handed in by that date, the board will select quotations it thinks will most aptly describe such individuals. A blank space instead of a picture, and a quotation selected at random will commemorate these students to posterity—unless they take action immediately."

So far, approximately 400 students out of over 500 have had their pictures taken. Only a few (Continued on Page Four)

FORSEY UPHOLDS RIGHT TO SPEAK

Social Problems Club Passes Resolution on Freedom of Speech

"Let us try to be fair—even to those with whom we disagree most strongly; there is always the possibility that they may be right and if they are wrong, we are a good deal more likely to convince them by fair, calm reasoned argument than by indiscriminate abuse." With these words Mr. Eugene Forsey, summed up this address to the Social Problems Club yesterday afternoon.

Following the address the meeting passed a resolution, which stated in part that the Social Problems Club re-affirms their belief in the freedom of any individual to express his opinions in public.

McGill Engineers Read Papers Before Institute

Tonight the Montreal Branch of the Junior Section of the Engineering Institute of Canada, will present the Annual Student Night for Engineering students at the Institute's headquarters, 2050 Mansfield St., beginning at 8:15 p.m.

At the meeting four papers on Engineering subjects will be read; two by McGill students and two by students of the Ecole Polytechnique. W. G. Ward of McGill will present "Lighting, A Social Science"; E. M. Cantwell, also of McGill, will read, "A Mine Assay Office." The other papers are, "The Construction Of A Six-Inch Telescope," by A. Monti, Ecole Polytechnique, and "The Fixed Point Method and Influence Lines," by M. R. Trudeau, Ecole Polytechnique. These papers are considered the best of those submitted by Engineering students to their respective Universities. The students whose papers are adjudged the best will be awarded prizes of $15 and $10.

While the judges, composed of three Senior members of the Institute, determine the winners, a sound movie, "The Song the Map Sings," will be shown through the courtesy of the Ford Motor Company of Canada.

Several other awards will be made at the meeting. The Ernest Marceau prize, worth $25, will be awarded the French-speaking member of the Student or Junior sections of the Institute who presents the best paper on a technical subject. The Phelps Johnson prize is a similar award which will be given the English-speaking Student or Junior who turns in the best paper in his group. Several Institute prizes of $25 each will be awarded the winning competitors from among Third Year Engineering students. At the close of the meeting refreshments will be served. Interested Engineering students are invited to attend.

The Engineering Institute of Canada is an Institution for Professional Engineers and Engineering students. Membership in the Institute can be had at any time by properly qualified persons. Students on securing the reference of a professor of their University can join by paying the student fee of $3. They are then entitled to full use of the facilities of the Institute and to receive its Journal.

ALLIES TO WIN SAYS HAPSBURG

Austrian Archduke Addresses Toronto Christian Movement

Advices Danubian Confederation and Liberation of Austria

Toronto, Ont., November 22. — (C.U.P.)—Hope that victory for the Allies in war will lead to a new territorial settlement in Central Europe, and formation of a new Danubian Confederacy, was voiced by His Imperial Highness, Archduke Felix of Austria in a Student Christian Movement address at the University of Toronto today.

"The war will surely be won by the Allies. There is no other possibility," he said, "and while there is little possibility that the United States of Europe will materialize 'for some time,' a Danubian confederation comprising Czechoslovakia, Austria and Hungary should be created following the victory."

Signs of Lasting Peace. Younger brother of Archduke Otto von Hapsburg, present pretender to the Austrian throne, and third son of the last Emperor Charles, first Archduke Felix saw signs of lasting peace in a settlement which would combine these states in an economic and political federation. Such a union would differ from the former Austro-Hungarian Empire in that it would be more "democratic" and "much less centralized," he said.

To be a "real union" it must be engineered "by the people themselves," and not imposed by a victor, warned the Archduke. The ruler would also be chosen by the people, he said, adding that Austria and Hungary are both strongly monarchistic, and that "Hungarians are no longer against the Hapsburgs."

Describing his proposal as "a bulwark of civilization against Pan-Germanism and Communism," he indicated that it would bring security to the Danubian basin. But "each country must preserve its rights and ideals, and no country must be allowed to dominate," he said. "The spirit of the Austrian people now is a spirit of defiance, to break the Nazi terror and again become an independent nation; if Austria is not set free at the end of this war, there can be no lasting peace."

PLAYERS POSTPONE RUSSET MANTLE

Play to Be Held Week Later on December 13, 15, 16

"Russet Mantle," originally scheduled for production December 7, 8, 9, has been postponed to Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday of the following week, the dates being the 13th, 15th, and 16th.

This postponement allows the cast more time to polish up on their performances doubly necessitated by the recent changes, and also the dates will not conflict with the M.R.T. schedule.

In an interview with Mr. John Mellor, the director, yesterday, he expressed complete confidence in the outcome of the play. "The added week," he said, "will enable us to surpass any other production which I have directed." Mr. Mellor has directed "French Without Tears" and "Richard of Bordeaux" (Continued on Page Four)

Political Economy Club Hears Address on French Canadian War Attitude

Alfred Laurendeau, editor of the French newspaper l'Action Nationale and Gordon Thomas, fourth year Honours student in Economics and Sociology, in their addresses before the Political Economy Club last night on the subject "The Attitude of French Canadians Towards Canada's Participation in European Wars" expressed the belief that French Canadians do not like being coerced into war.

French Canadian Attitude. M. Laurendeau stated that the French Canadian attitude of non-participation, at which France is even more surprised than England, is due to French Canada's long lack of connection with France and Europe generally. Their opinion that their destiny lies in America is not a light one, he said. ## DEMOCRACY IN WAR AND PEACE CAHAN'S TOPIC

Dinner Meeting Scheduled For 6.30 Tonight

FOURTH IN SERIES

Student Lectures Sponsored By Erskine and American United Church

Tonight the Honourable C. H. Cahan will address McGill students at a dinner to be held in Cheney Hall of Erskine and American United Church. The subject upon which Mr. Cahan will talk is "Democracy in Peace and War". This is the fourth in a series of five lectures known as the Student Lecture Series, the former speakers being Dean Hendel, Rabbi Eisen-drath and Dr. Rothney. The Right Honourable Arthur Meighen was scheduled to speak tonight, but owing to pressing obligations asked to be relieved until after the New Year when he has promised to join the series. The dinner will commence at 6:30, and a welcome is extended to all those interested in attending.

Object of Lectures.

Mr. John Macdonald organizer of the series, stressed the fact that Mr. Cahan's address will not be in the nature of a digression; for although education is in the fore, the object of the lecture is to make it possible for students to hear outstanding speakers deal with the social and political problems facing every individual today.

Mr. Cahan has had a long and distinguished career in the public eye, both as a statesman and constitutional lawyer. Besides representing Canada's largest constituency in Parliament he held the portfolio of Secretary of State in the Bennett Cabinet.

In a private interview, Mr. Macdonald stated that Mr. Cahan has revealed a definite concern for a greater discrimination on the part of a democratic citizenship. Furthermore he believes that the criticism (Continued on Page Four)

The Societe Francaise will meet today at 4:00 p.m. in the common room of the R. V. C. The speaker of the day will be Madame Pierre Casgrain who will speak on "Votes for Women and the Position and Status of Women in Quebec."

Madame Casgrain has been for long years a pioneer in the fight for women's votes in the Province of Quebec. She did a great deal in the organization of women here and has been long their recognized leader. The French Canadian Junior league owes its existence to the efforts of Madame Casgrain and she has done many other things to further the suffrage movement.

The meeting will be open to all members of the Women's Union. Tea will be served as usual and the Executive Committee hopes that many will avail themselves of this opportunity to meet Quebec's authority on the suffrage question.

Liberalizing Engineering

Dr. Edwin Burdell, director of Cooper Union in New York City, in his annual report published last week, talks of the "revolution" that is taking place now in engineering education. The revolution referred to is a trend toward the liberalizing of the curriculum of the engineering schools. This trend is marked by a bill before the state legislature at Albany requiring that every engineer who presents himself for a licence to practice must have had at least two years of liberal arts before entering upon his training.

Talking of this requirement, Dr. Burdell says that "the danger lies in assuming that a preliminary two-year immersion in a liberal arts atmosphere will necessarily have some permanent effect on the attitudes and behaviour of the engineering student four years later when he graduates and begins to practise." On the other hand, he admits that there is ample evidence that training has been narrowed too much by an elaborate provision for the first job and that little attempt has been made to stir those interests which lead the graduating engineer to a continued study of science and society.

What is the value of a liberalizing of the engineering course when, after all, the engineer is in effect a trained technician? He must have a specialized knowledge of his subject and need have no more. What, therefore is the point of this recent trend in engineering education?

The answer to those questions lies partially in a survey conducted by Dr. Mann of the Carnegie Foundation. He submitted to over 500 practising engineers the question: "What are the essential qualities of a successful engineer?" An analysis of the replies showed that 41 per cent. estimated character, 17.5 per cent. judgment, 14.5 efficiency, 14 per cent. understanding of human nature, and 13 per cent. technical knowledge. These figures show that while no engineer can be a success without a sound technical knowledge, he cannot be a success with only a sound technical knowledge.

Other factors that were more important included character, judgment, efficiency, and understanding of human nature. The usual course in engineering, especially as it is given at McGill with its emphasis on mathematics and physics in the first two years, is best designed to develop efficiency, character, and possibly even judgment. But judgment is to a large part concerned with many things other than mathematics and physics. Judgment requires a knowledge of matters other than scientific and that knowledge is usually not forthcoming in the typical engineering course. There is one argument for a more liberal engineering course, it would provide much of the factual knowledge needed to develop the required judgment.

As for the percentage of success that is supplied by an understanding of human nature, it is generally true that courses relating to human personality are lacking. Perhaps the addition of the social sciences would be beneficial in this respect.

A third argument that is included in the previous two is that the average engineer after graduation has a much too narrow a conception of the whole as a whole. How many engineers are there, for example, who know much of the biological sciences, to say nothing of philosophy, sociology, etc.?

What has been done? In McGill, practically every engineering course requires at least one term, or in some courses, two terms, of "engineering economics" and corporation law. Besides this, second year students are required to read at least four books on a selected list or write an essay on their summer engineering work, while third year men read Cheney's book, "An Introduction to the Social and Industrial History of England," or write an essay on their summer work in engineering. That is the full extent of the strictly cultural courses.

The trend seems to be toward liberalization; are McGill's engineers to be "liberalized?"

RECENT SUBJECTIVE FICTION

By Wallace Gowdey

The "stream-of-consciousness" type of writing has its origin in English in the works of Dorothy Richardson and James Joyce, who are perhaps the best exponents of this art. This is a new and radical development from the subjectivism in former novels. It exploits the element of incoherence in our conscious process. It treats of a character rather than within than without. The incoherence characterizes both our normal and abnormal states of mind. The result is often a slow moving and intricate novel, devoid of startling events or melodrama, where the trivial is examined under a high-powered and complicated microscope. Virginia Woolf makes frequent use of this, as for example in "Mrs. Dalloway" and "To the Lighthouse". Conrad Aiken, Dos Passos, Sherwood Anderson and even the realist Theodore Dreiser have passages of it in their novels, for it is an infection to which anyone is liable. It will make an indelible mark upon English fiction.

In each of Dorothy Richardson's books she presents the same heroine, Miriam Henderson. Miss Richardson is either writing plain autobiography or else she has succeeded in identifying herself completely with Miriam. For perhaps the first time in a third person narrative, we have an absolute rendering of the character's point of view. Her books have no social or philosophical theme nor is there any formal characterization. There is no dramatic issue and a minimum of plot. Her works are often difficult to follow and lack variety.

No Dramatic Action.

James Joyce's "Ulysses" represents the most complete reaction against the main tendencies of the well made novel. It has had a widespread influence on many later books and must be taken into serious consideration. It is a fictitious narrative in prose, but has hardly more of a plan than "Tristram Shandy." It is a tremendously lengthy book but occupies the space of only one day in the lives of several Dublin people. The most important of these are Stephen Dedalus, an Irish poet and school teacher, his companion Leopold Bloom who is a Jewish canvasser for advertisements, and Leopold's wife, Marion. None of the events are ever brought to a head in dramatic action or issue. There is practically no passion, even of love.

In "A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man" Joyce makes a clear statement of the aesthetic intention which was to be more completely realized in "Ulysses". He says that he will follow the dramatic form "wherein the artist presents his image in immediate relation to others". Thus he omits all the explanations with which it has been customary to guide and enlighten the reader. He wishes to get entirely rid of the personality of the author. This often makes very confusing and complicated literature. Browning had tried it in his poetry and each of his peculiarities can be found in Joyce. "A Portrait of the Artist" is much easier reading than "Ulysses" and there are only a few difficult passages, mostly towards the end.

Another important writer who is a devotee of this style of writing is Virginia Woolf. Many of her books contain very little dialogue and one, "The Waves", contains none at all. This book is entirely made up of soliloquies in which the several characters explain themselves to themselves at various stages of their careers—as children playing together, then at school, at college or in society, in business or family life. They drift apart but twice they come together. The same grouping of characters in one locality is also employed in "To the Lighthouse". Mrs. Ramsay is the central figure and is shown in relation to her husband, children and guests. In the last part of the book, after she is dead, her memory is still a dominating factor in the lives of the survivors.

Trend in Drama.

The stream-of-consciousness trend is not restricted to fiction alone. It spread to the drama, although not as successfully. In Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" the characters are made to speak their minds, not in the form of an aside, but with the thoughts that spring directly from their consciousness.

It is in the novel that this form will either stand or fall. It is a type of writing that can never appeal to the uneducated or casual reader because, to be fully appreciated, it requires study and deep concentration. As an example of the limitation in its popularity both Miss Richardson and James Joyce have small reading publics today. This method has its drawbacks, but it has contributed to the progress of literature, and therefore assumes an importance. The stream-of-consciousness fiction will always hold an interest for the students of literature at least, and will never be entirely neglected.

By Patty and Batty

Batty says:—

This is (sniff-sniff) de dime vy golds (kai-choo)—and wad are we goig do do about washin our hair—well, we can't wash it but we tie a piece of silk over our brush before stroking, which removes the oil from our scalp and hair and gives our crown a shining glory.

For the Junior Prom—we're going to wear Mother's beautiful old lace scarf over our costume to keep snow (?) and ear-breezes from ruffling our curls. And if we wear a dress designed to scarlet O'Hara's taste, we'll dress our throat and one wrist with pastel velvet band with petite bows en avant.

—So, finger free gloves are "it" now, in new colors—and styles—afternoon dress or sports—very smart, and give our hand something worthwhile to look at—plus body. And to you men who read Co-Ed Chic (and bless us—if we don't hear of those who do—maybe we should include men's fashions herein also—no!) Anyway men—you too can wear these "finger-free's"—buy "your" Co-Ed and self a pair for Santa's fiesta.

Time has just about come when the "Xmas shopping-list worry" grows on our minds—so here's hints to you for the gifts for—The Man. —Remember that the well-groomed clad likes brushes that have a good grip for the hand and shaving lotion or eau-de-cologne in neat bottles—not the fancy kind that suit our taste. Also recall whether he uses a safety or electric razor—there's a difference. The brush shaver uses the creams whereas the "switch" user shaves dry with either a skin lotion or powder as a refresher—key chains (initialled for that personal touch)—and a well-priced good-looking tie is better than no tie at all, or three fine linen handkerchiefs than six for—$1.00. If he's the pipe smoker—good brand tobacco—(Still you can always knit him that sweater you promised him.) Sport initialled silk evening scarf or hand-knit (yellow with brown initial) is a smart combination, sport neck warmers, latest style in cuff-links is the link in form of an initial alone.

Patty says:—

You're sure to cut a pretty figure in a short, full valting skirt and a hug-me-tight jacket. Wool jersey or velveteen seem most popular this season, although plaids too are appearing. A study in black and scarlet for flaming drama on the rink, look too too demure, and oh so cozy—carrying a plump quilted muff to match your costume. Little fur bordered babushkas will discipline your curls and make you appealingly romantic—so gals, if you haven't skates, better ask Santa for a pair for Xmas—I'm sure he'll understand!

Just take a gander at all the Prom posters, note the sales rise, and I'm sure you'll agree it pays to advertise, so why not embroider your name on the cuffs of your anklets, dangle them in the aisle and watch the males trip over—introductions hardly necessary. Another way to become known is to whip out one of these new monogrammed compacts—some are designed to represent a phone dial and say "call me up." This gentle (?) hint makes the fine art of dating a snap.

On the big night, give yourself oodles of time to dress and relax. Enjoy the heavenly, tingling sensation of a bath a la Crystal Allen (a bubble bath to you). This foamy, frothy, perfumed luxury will give you pep to dance 'till dawn... and get to lectures the morning after. What an investment!!!

Be as colorful as The Prom, in kitten-sift French suede evening gloves to match or harmonize with your gown. They are in exciting after-sundown shades—perfect for doing La Conga or dining with royalty. Frame your face in matching ostrich plumes and you're all set to capture his heart in ¼ time.

QUIET, PLEASE

Bring your knitting to your lectures, Profs don't mind (much) any more— But keep your needles in your knitting, Pray don't drop them on the floor!

The rhythmic click of knitting needles Has been eulogized before— But keep your needles busy clicking, Pray don't drop them on the floor!

Part 2, knit 2, slip one over, Do your bit to win the war, But keep your needles in the stitches, Pray don't drop them on the floor.

AN ODE TO A CHARMING DEBUT.

Jupiter and Mars (And lots of other stars) Have run away and hid their faces; The brightness of high noon, The glitter of the moon, Have learned just what the meaning of disgrace is; The chalky cliffs of Dover Admit the Ball is over, They say their fame is lost and gone forever; The lily and the pearl Their shabbiness unfurl; And all because a dentist was so clever For Tuesday morning early, A winsome, wholesome girly Displayed, 'twixt aching cheeks, a gorgeous view— They could dazzle, they could stun, And they acted, every one, As though this wasn't quite their first debut. —QUENTIN BROWN.

Shepherd, Not Shepard.

To the Editor of the McGill Daily: Sir—May I draw your attention to the report which appeared in the McGill Daily of Friday, 17th November, on papers given by medical students at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. Mr. Lee Sleeves' subject "Dr. F. F. Shepard, Surgeon," was of interest to me, as a nephew of Dr. SHEPHERD'S, but I was amazed to see, all through the article, that Dr. Shepherd's name was spelled "SHEPARD."

Surely, with all the records of Dr. Shepherd's life available at McGill, it seems incredible that the gentleman who wrote the paper should be so unobservant.

Possibly it was the reporter for the "Daily" who was responsible for the error, but in any case it appears inexcusable that the subject of the address should have his name appear in wrong spelling, especially when the specific surgeon was for years so closely connected with McGill University and the Montreal General Hospital.

Yours very truly,
R. W. SHEPHERD.

Resignations.

To the Editor of the McGill Daily: Sir—I have written letters to Mr. Horace G. Baugh and to Mr. R. Douglas Campbell, Presidents of the Debating Union Society and the Arts Undergraduate Society, resigning my position as Secretary of these two organizations. I would like to explain the circumstances which led me to this decision.

The situation in which I find myself is a very different one from that of last year, when I accepted these two positions.

Last year Canada was at peace and the C.O.T.C. did not require more than an evening of my time each week. Now there are three parades a week, in addition to the preparation required for the lectures.

The negligible headway which I have made thus far in my studies led me to take a serious view of the advice given me at the beginning of the term by one of my professors,—that I must reduce my extra-curricular activities.

The fact that this year I must devote a considerable portion of each week to working in order to earn my fees made the situation even more difficult.

The above considerations made my position an impossible one. It was therefore with the deepest regret that I was forced to take this step.

Sincerely yours,
GUY L. CARON.

Hockey Title Sought in Current Senior Campaign

Exhibition Schedule Is Planned for Near Future

Fourteen sports writers and coaches in four cities voted on an All-Star Eastern Intercollegiate team and placed three McGill men on it. Captain Alec Hamilton was their choice for flying wing and Murray Telford and Howie Bartram were picked as middles. Whenever the "Second Guessers" clubs hold their meetings these days in hallways and labs, various All Star teams are mooted and some weird and wonderful combinations are occasionally suggested. Few are likely to disagree with the selection of the three already mentioned Redmen, particularly in the case of Alec Hamilton who was picked for the second time in a row but the omission of Bob Keefer will likely cause some of the "Second Guessers" considerable pain as will also the fact that Colin McDougall was left out.

Thanks to Tom Schofield for an interesting and clear explanation for his reasons for believing that Eastern football should be lived up by changes in rules. His letter, published in yesterday's Daily, agreed with views expressed in this column a week ago and elaborated on several points brought up then.

Harold MacNamara in today's Gazette also weighs in with a blast against the die-hards who refuse to change Eastern rules. This isn't an attempt to suggest however, that he was impelled by last week's column or even read it. However it does seem fine to a Westerner to see, two days in a row, opinions publicly expressed that the Western representatives deserve a better break when they make the long trip down here every fall.

Here's one sports writer who really got a kick out of seeing McGill's two water polo squads earn a win and a draw in one night recently. The painful duty of breaking the sad news that the Redmen had again dropped a water polo match was sorely taxing the ingenuity of certain reporters and heads such as "Merman Swamped," "Water Babies Drowned," "Tankmen Torpedoed" and others were being suggested by despairing sports men as they tried to avoid the seemingly inevitable "McGill Drops Water Polo Game."

Seriously however the fact that the Seniors were able to take the strong M.A.A.A. outfit into camp speaks well for McGill's hopes of retaining it's so often won Intercollegiate title. If memory serves correctly, the team won few if any games last year in the very strong city loop but the practice so gained gave the Redmen a wide edge over Queens and Toronto. This business of always trying to play opponents better than you are may be hard on the pride at times but it certainly seems to be good for the game.

Yesterday afternoon, Coach Farquharson continued to send his hopeful puckchasers through their paces, in preparation for their seventh successive Canadian Intercollegiate Title defence, and their bid to retain the coveted Thompson Trophy, significant of the International Intercollegiate Championship, which they have held since its inception, three years ago. In view of this long period of hockey prosperity, the 1939-40 edition of the Red machine has inherited a very formidable task—and especially so, since the long line of McGill luminaries has rapidly disappeared.

In fact, they are in much the same position as the ill-fated football squad, with a nucleus of veteran stellar performers, led by Captain Cam Dickson, and a group of smooth-skating lesser lights—among them, many promising inexperienced newcomers and several seasoned candidates, whose work has been overshadowed by such great names as McConnell and Perowne—and with the impetus of last year's title, are looked upon as favourites.

Strong Defence

When the Redmen line up for the opening face-off, on January 6, they may be certain that the defensive chores will be amply taken care of; for goalies Fyfe and Johnson have been giving encouraging displays in practice, and they will receive the strong protection in front of Dickson and Dunn, whose powerful checking and sparkling rushing last year gave Coach Farquharson the most effective backline combination in the college loop.

Up front, Howie Walker, shifty centre and high scorer, is the lone veteran, who at the present time is inactive due to an arm injury and will be heavily counted upon to spark the McGill attack. Two more forwards, who last year showed speed to burn, and are shaping up as mainstays of the current outfit are Bill MacDonald, and Don Doherty.

Unfortunately the keen competition of the Q.S.H.L., through which Redmen have risen to defeat outfits of the calibre of the Ottawa Senators, will be sorely missed, but plans are already underway to compensate for this to some extent, with exhibition tilts. Two are planned for the middle of December—one with the Verdun Bulldogs of the Provincial League, and a squad of Grads to be organized by Dr. Bobby Bell. Although the team seems to be progressing satisfactorily, its true status will be able to be judged only under the fire of real competition of these preliminary fixtures.

PUGS TO START WEEKLY FIGHTS

Seeking Experience in Saturday Afternoon Sessions

Prepare for Meet With Naval Academy in January

Although somewhat cramped in their quarters at the Field House the McGill boxers are proving very enthusiastic in their efforts to get into shape for the coming B.W. & F. tournament to be held at the new gymnasium in February.

The title hopes of the Red squad appear very good this year as many of last year's team are turning out regularly for the practice sessions. Captain Pete Stanley, Two-lone Tommy Hughes, and little Abe Bazerman are particularly showing the benefit of their previous experience; while of the new men, Shortt, DeBlais, and Jim Simpson of Freshman football fame, are pointing towards pugilistic honours. These newer men, however, lack a very necessary experience in ring craft, but it is expected that the Saturday afternoon sessions of actual bouts, either with the Y.M.C.A. or among the McGill boxers themselves, will aid greatly in seasoning these novices. This coming Saturday, November 25, at 2 p.m., the first of these boxing afternoons will commence, and it is hoped that all those who can possibly come, will not fail to be at the Field House on time.

Besides the weekly sessions, a tournament has been arranged with the United States Coast Guard Academy, which will take place near the end of January at the Naval Academy. The Sailors are reputedly quite tough nuts to crack, but it is expected that McGill will make a very commendable showing, especially if the Tuesday and Thursday workouts are any criterion. There is still room, however, for all who wish to learn the art of fistfights, and it is hoped that they will not delay any longer in putting in an appearance at the Field House.

SPORT NOTICES

OARSMEN

From this date onward the rowing machines are situated in the M.A.A.A. room of the Field House. Training under Mr. Molmans will be as usual from 2.30 every afternoon. The entrance on University St. will be open.

R.V.C. BADMINTON

There will be another informal game of badminton played in the R.V.C. recreation hall tonight at 7.30. Last week there was a large turnout, and it is hoped that the coeds will continue to be as enthusiastic. All those interested whether residents or non-residents of R.V.C. are urged to turn out.

COED ARCHERY

The annual Beginners' Tournament for R.V.C. archers is being held Thursday afternoon, November 23rd, from 2.00 to 4.00 p.m. Quite a number of coeds have signified their intention of entering this contest. ## POLOISTS AGAIN TRY FOR TITLE

Heading Towards Seventh Consecutive Championship

Team to Meet Winner of Queen's-Toronto Series

Highly elated over their recent victory in the City Water Polo league, the McGill Water Babies are looking forward to winning their seventh straight Inter-collegiate Championship.

Despite the confidence in the Red team's ability to retain their title, it is certain that they will be meeting some pretty stiff opposition in the winner of the Queens-Toronto playdown, and they will have to play their best game to win.

Last year McGill beat Queens and Toronto on successive nights by very decisive scores, in their opponent's home rinks, but Queens in particular are a much superior aggregation to their last year's squad, as their showing in the Intra-city league, against K. of C. has proven. McGill's main advantage in playing against these other colleges is the fact that the Red team plays two or three games a week in the City League. The experience gained in these contests has been invaluable in producing so many excellent teams. However, McGill will miss Shragovich and Shapiro of last year's team, as these men were the

C.P. All Star Team

Three of this season's McGill football squad were named in The Canadian Press Intercollegiate All Star Team yesterday by 14 coaches and sport writers of the union. The three players who are all veterans of last year's championship team include Alec Hamilton, Murray Telford and Howie Bartram. This marks the second successive year that Alec Hamilton has been named to the All Star Team.

The complete All Star Team as named by The Canadian Press is as follows: Flying Wing, Alec Hamilton, McGill; Half, Harry Szuminski, Western; Half, Joe Krol, Western; Half (secondary defence), Clem Faust, Western; Quarterback, Alf Hurley, Western; Snap, Nick Palthouski, Queen's; Inside, Jerry Conlin, Queen's; Inside, Chuck McLean, Toronto; Middle, Murray Telford, McGill; Middle, Howie Bartram, McGill; Outside, Roy Kent, Western; Outside, Claude Moore, Western.

ranks. This year the Intermediate city loop will be composed of two leagues with McGill competing in an Intercollegiate league composed of Sir George Williams, Macdonald and U. of M.

Back to Intermediate ranks again from last year's squad are Drysdale, Harlow, and Kisilevsky who should form the backbone of the team and will be supported by Reilly, Culley, Ascah, Taylor and McCulloch from last season's Junior team. Last year a lack of experience accounted in a large measure for the poor showing of the Intermediate quintet but this year the team should be much improved due to the previous experience acquired in the Junior team, which started last year.

Following are the probable line-ups for the two McGill games this Saturday evening: Seniors: Kingston, Sandburg, Giannasia, Wykes, Purdie, Mislav, Keyes, Holdredge, DeWitt, Kalfas. Intermediates: Drysdale, Harlow, Pye, Robinson, Reilly, Culley, Ascah, McCulloch, Taylor, Leonards, Kisilevsky.

SOCCER

Will all those who have not turned in their equipment, please do so as soon as possible, at the Field House. Lockers must also be cleaned out, and any locks returned to the Soccer Manager.

he has had plenty of experience both around the city and in the inter-collegiate loop. With all these players of quality, and with plenty of reserve strength, it seems a good bet that McGill will receive her first big Christmas present a little early, in the shape of another water-polo championship.

Only five more practices are to be held before the inter-collegiate series begins, so it is expected that all the team-members who wish to remain on the squad, will not miss any of these important sessions.

cal and momentous times through which we are now passing demand careful perusal of the ideals and principles of democracy. He is extremely anxious that while engaged in war we should never permit the principles that motivated our participation to become obscure. Hence his lecture is expected to throw light on the ideals of democracy from an enlightened and experienced viewpoint.

Attendance Low.

Considering the quality and merit of lectures presented, the attendance so far has been somewhat of a disappointment, stated Mr. MacDonald. If this prevailing apathy and lack of interest on the part of the students keeps up, the organizers of the Series scarcely feel justified in continuing to ask the services of such outstanding speakers, it was stated. Erskine and American United Church accepts the responsibility of paying the various speakers, with one aim in view, to afford to students the opportunity of seeing their specialized studies in perspective, of having their knowledge integrated, and given meaning by its being discussed from the point of view that regards each particular branch of knowledge with reference to the whole, but recent attendance has been such as to warrant doubts about the wisdom of continuing the Lecture Series.

Tonight's program has been arranged so that the dinner, lecture and the discussion following the address should be over by 8 p.m. Those wishing to attend are requested to make a point of telephoning their reservations early in order to avoid possible disappointment, since seating capacity is limited.

On December 7 Principal R. A. Wallace of Queen's University will speak on "The Spiritual in Education."

WAR MEASURES ACT SUPPORTED

Arts Debaters Uphold Policy of Government

Mr. Forsey Judges; Gotthell and Louthood Are Victors

The negative side of the resolution that "The present War Measures Act is justified," was successfully upheld by Jack Gotthell and Reg. D. Louthood, who defeated their opponents Bob Spencer and A. E. Wilfong yesterday in the Arts Debate. Mr. Eugene Forsey of the Economics Department who judged the debate, said that he had enjoyed it more than any other in the series.

State of War.

Wilfong, first speaker for the affirmative, opened his argument by declaring that a state of war exists in Canada, and for this reason the War Measures Act is justified. He explained that democratic principles have been suspended only until the end of the war, and will return just as they did after the Great War of 1914, when a similar act was passed.

The negative, however, conceded that some points of the War Measures Act were justifiable, but that the battle waged mainly on civil liberties. J. Gotthell, speaker for the negative, argued that the people of Canada are fighting for democratic ideals, and that if freedom of speech is suppressed one of the most important arguments for democracy will be lost, namely, the right to criticize the government. He then quoted Stanley Baldwin and others who all warn against losing the principles for which we are fighting.

War Measure Act Necessary.

Bob Spencer, defending the affirmative, declared that a slow-working democracy cannot possibly function in war time, citing England and France as two examples of this fact. He stated also that as a united front was imperative in winning the war, there was no room for opposing parties in Canada, and therefore the War Measures Act was necessary, not to restrict civil liberties, but in order to pursue the war with efficient and united action.

But Reg. Louthood speaking for the negative, argued that a small group of men with all the power cannot decide about the war policy of Canada, for they will do so according to their own prejudices. This will in addition help to lay a basis for dictatorship. Louthood also said that England's government is redrafting her War Measures Act more in keeping with democratic principles, and England is much nearer danger than is Canada. He ended his argument by declaring, "Let us not lose democracy and so lose the war."

It has been announced by Lloyd Henderson, President of the Arts Debating Society, that another debate will be held next Wednesday, November 29, in Room 12 of the Arts Building at 3:00 p.m. The subject of the debate will be, "Resolved that the organization and maintenance of labour unions should be discouraged," the negative being upheld by Jack Louthood and John Parker while the affirmative will be upheld by L. A. Shapiro and G. Keith Cowan.
